

JXL receives award Atlassian Partner of the Year 2022: Marketplace Rising Star

SYDNEY, 18 April 2023 – Atlassian announced today that JXL has received the Atlassian Partner of the Year 2022: Marketplace Rising Star award and was also a finalist for the Atlassian Partner of the Year 2022: New Cloud App award for its outstanding contribution and achievements during the calendar year 2022. This includes exceptional efforts in developing new business, thought leadership, and products and services that complement Atlassian's.

Fine Software, the company behind JXL, was one of 26 global partner recipients honoured in the annual Atlassian Partner of the Year program for its continuous efforts and exceptional customer work.

"We're proud of JXL's achievements in 2022 and are excited to recognise them as an Atlassian Partner of the Year", said Allyce Mardesich, Atlassian's Head of Marketplace Partnerships. "The growth, innovation, and passion our partners demonstrate every day is a key component to the Atlassian solutions unleashing the potential in every team. We look forward to working with JXL to continue providing customers with valuable solutions on the Atlassian Marketplace."

About Fine Software

Sydney, Australia-based Fine Software Group was founded in 2020 with the mission to craft beautiful software that really helps people get their job done. In March 2021 the company took in seed funding from Atlassian Ventures. Co-founders Daniel Franz and Hannes Obweger have more than 15 years of combined experience leading teams at Atlassian, in addition to founding several other businesses, including the Roadmaps for Jira add-on (acquired by Atlassian and now part of Jira Software). The company's main product is JXL, an app that enhances Atlassian's flagship product Jira. Visit fine.software/press for more information and resources.

Media contact

press@fine.software